

Families remember

Photos by Denny Culbert/dculbert@theadvertiser.com

Dorothy Zenon inspects the note written on her granddaughter, Alaina Zenon's, balloon for their husband and grandfather Robert Zenon Jr. during the Hospice Compassus Service of Remembrance on Thursday in Parc Sans Souci. All of those who died in the hospice's care over the last two years were honored. Chaplain David Rousse offered prayer and comfort, as he urged participants to let go of their balloons and any pent up grief they may still have.

Those who lost family members of the last two years hold balloons and listen during the Hospice Compassus Service of Remembrance on Thursday in Parc Sans Souci.

